Donnelly Summons Guard

Will Use Military Police to Assist Patrol of Highways During the Holiday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Phil M. Donnelly said today he is calling out the National Guard to help patrol Missouri's highways over the Labor Day weekend in an effort to reduce the traffic toll.

Donnelly said all safety programs, slogans and campaigns have failed to stop the carnage on the highways. He said he was calling for "rigid and impartial enforcement of the traffic laws and certain punishment for violations."

The plan was worked out by the governor with the help of Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol and Maj. Gen. A. D. Sheppard, adjutant general of Missouri.

Sheppard some

Sheppard said some 250 men, members of the guard's 175th military police battalion and the 35th Division Military Police Company, would be called out for duty with the 325 uniformed state patrolmen who will be on the highways during the four-day period beginning next Friday.

The guardsmen will come from contingents in Columbia, Fulton, Warrenton, Moberly and Hannibal. They will go on duty at 6 a.m. Friday and be released at midnight Monday, Sept. 3.

The guardsmen will have full power to arrest under the governor's emergency proclamation.

Sheppard said the guardsmen would use radio-equipped jeeps to patrol the highways. Their radios will be integrated with the State Patrol's radio network. Sheppard also said if the necessary communications changes can be made the guards will supply some reconnaissance plans to help patrol the roads, as the patrol's own aircraft will do.

Waggoner said he has canceled all leaves and vacations for state patrol personnel and every available man under him will be on the road during the peak travel hours of the weekend.

He said 12 persons were killed on Missouri highways during a three-day labor day weekend a year ago. Donnelly said the traffic toll must be reduced and bad drivers must be punished.

BOOKED ON EXTORTION CHARGE—Richard T. France, right, 21-year-old laborer, is booked at police headquarters in Joplin, Mo., by Detective Gene Eichelberger, left, on a charge of attempted extortion in a plot to obtain $5000 from a Joplin widow. Police say France admitted he sent a note to Mrs. Ethel Mae Crockett, demanding the money in small bills be packaged and placed on a tennis court. (NEA Telephoto)

Boonslick Library Head Resigns Post

Will Be Director Of Library Work In State of Florida

Miss Verna Nistendirk, Boonslick Regional Librarian, has resigned to accept a position as director of library extension for the state of Florida, according to Mrs. Kurman Riley, chairman of the library board. Miss Nistendirk came here to organize the library in October, 1953, and since that time has developed a library of eight full time staff members and over 36,000 volumes. Three times it has received national recognition, twice for John Cotton Dana publicity awards and once as the recipient of a Ford Foundation grant for adult education awarded by the American Library Association.

The service of the Boonslick Regional Library has been to all of Cooper County and to Pettis County outside the city of Sedalia. A contractual agreement between the three libraries has provided much more service than any could receive alone.

Mrs. Riley says that the library board is searching for a well-qualified successor to Miss Nistendirk, one who has the education and experience to carry out the best practices of libraries and to continue with the progress the library has made in the past three years.

In her new position Miss Nistendirk will promote the development of new libraries and will work with the established libraries to help improve their services. Florida's libraries have not developed as have their schools and other public educational services and Miss Nistendirk states that she will be working to bring them up to the standards of good libraries everywhere.

The latest list of children who have received bookworm awards is as follows: Blackwater School—Larry Werneke; Clarksburg School, Linda Martin; Green Ridge School, Donald Fiedler and Alice Hunter; Hughesville School, Larry Diefendorf; La Monte School, Roger Eastip, Charles Hall, Regina Ray Raney, Linda Schroeder and Sheryl Wasson; Otterville School, Mike Dunham and Donnie Everett; Prairie Home School, Donna McClannahan and Donnie Sells; Smithton School, Dorothy Armstrong; South Side School, Ralph Rehmer; Sunnyside School, Johnny Richards; Woodland School, Doris Derendinger and Linda Sue Griffin.

Young Exhibitor Loses Prized Possessions

The Missouri State Fair was a red letter week for Gary Dye, 15-year-old 4-H exhibitor from Holliday, Mo.—until tragedy hit. Gary had received a number of awards, including one for showing the Champion Guernsey female in the 4-H Department, and a plaque presented him by the National Guernsey Association. With the fair near its end, Gary and his family prepared to return home. The boy carefully laid his cherished trophies next to the family car while other things were put in. And then—the whole family got in the auto, started off, with the trophies on the ground. Shortly Gary remembered, and the Dyes turned and dashed back, but the stack of prizes already had disappeared.

The 4-H Department party consoled the heartbroken Gary by promising to replace the ribbons, but it is doubtful that the plaque or Gary's open class ribbons can be replaced.

State Fair Attendance May Top 1955 Record; Figures Near Last Year's

Annual Cole Camp Fair Opens Soon

Will Begin Sept. 6 With Band Concert; Lasts Three Days

Hard on the heels of the Missouri State Fair, comes one of the better known county fairs in this region. The annual Cole Camp Fair opens with a band concert at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 6, and will continue until 10 p.m. each night until Saturday, Sept. 8.

This year eleven departments, under the auspices of the Benton County Agricultural and Mechanical Society, offer opportunities for men, women and children living in an area extending 12 miles to the north of Cole Camp, south to Hicky County Line, east 12 miles, including Stover, and west to the Henry County Line.

As has been the custom, the grand parade of floats for general and junior division, will be repeated at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, 7:45 p.m. Thursday, with the school floats, entered by the town and rural schools, in a parade at 10:30 a.m. Friday, and the grand parade of all floats at 7:45 Thursday night. Prizes will be awarded Thursday night, and the grand prize will be awarded at the parade Saturday night at 7:45.

Each year the floats entered in the parade have been works of art, comparable to those entered in parades in large cities. Hundreds of man hours are spent making crepe flowers and paper mache figures for the floats, which when finished, will look very professional. During parade time, the many spectators are often heard to comment that it's too bad more parades don't have this type of float.

The welcoming address will be made by the president of the fair board, Leo H. Boeschen, at 11 o'clock the morning of Sept. 6.

The schedule for the first day includes a band concert at 1:30 p.m. with judging in all departments. At 2 o'clock horses will be judged at the cattle barn. The band will again present a concert at 7 o'clock, prior to the parade at 7:15. The rides and shows on the midway will be opened.

On Friday, Sept. 7, which has been designated as School Day, the day begins with a band concert at 9:30, followed by the grand parade of school floats, led by the Cole Camp School Band. At 1 p.m. the band will play and 2 the exhibition and judging of dairy cattle will be held, followed by the exhibition and judging of FFA cattle and sheep. At 7 the band will give a concert before the parade of farm machinery and other non-floats at 7:15. At 7:45 prizes will be awarded for floats.

The last day of the fair, Sept. 8, opens with a band concert, and continues with an amateur contest for rural schools. Before the exhibition and judging of beef cattle and FFA beef cattle at 1:30, the band will play at 1:00. A pet show will be held at four, and includes prizes for the most unusual pet, best trick pet, best decorated pet and most outstanding pet. At 7 the band will play, at 7:15 the farm machinery and non-floats will pass the reviewing stand before the grand parade of all floats and the presentation of the Grand Prize of $55. The band will close the fair with a concert.

The Rev. H. J. Gerike is announcer and Lyle H. Webb is his assistant.

The executive board of the fair is composed of B. A. Dump, 1956, honorary president; Leo H. Boeschen, 1958, president; Elmer H. Heimsoth, 1958, vice - president; John W. Ragland, 1956, secretary-treasurer; Ervin J. Schnakenberg, 1957, member, and C. "Keeney" Fajen, 1957, member.

Administration Quashes Move to Reduce Down Payments on US-Insured Home Loans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—(AP)—The Administration, for anti-inflationary reasons, has quietly quashed a proposal of housing officials to reduce the down payments on government-insured home mortgages.

It was learned today that housing Albert M. Cole, administrator, suggested to President Eisenhower's economic advisers that down payments be dropped immediately to 5 per cent to stimulate lagging home construction.

Cole was asked to hold off for the present, in view of rapidly rising consumer prices, the potentially inflationary impact of the steel price increase, rising interest rates and tightness in the money markets.

The Housing and Home Finance Administration chief agreed to defer action, his associates disclosed, because he was "unwilling to do anything that would conflict with the basic stabilization policies of the administration."

The prospect now, according to housing officials, is that no significant steps to liberalize housing credit will be taken until the administration is convinced the inflationary hazards are past.

Cole was described as being "concerned but not alarmed" at the year-long decline in housing starts. His earlier estimate that this would be a 1,300,000-home year apparently has gone glimmering.

Some 99,100 houses were started last month. This, after seasonal adjustment, represents an annual rate of only 1,070,000 starts. Cole's chief concern, officials said, is not over the actual rate, which is still respectable by the standards of recent year, but over the fact that the trend continues downward. Last year 1,329,000 houses were started and in the first six months of 1956 the rate was about 1,125,000 annually.

Fragments of Bullets Show American Plane Was Hit by Gunfire

TOKYO, Aug. 25 (AP) — Bullet fragments in a sailor's body confirmed tonight that a U. S. Navy patrol bomber was hit by gunfire before it plunged into the China Sea off Red China's coast.

The 16 crewmen of the four-engine P4M Mercator were under routine orders to fire back if attacked, but there was no indication whether they did so before the crash early Thursday.

The aerial search for survivors was suspended. But surface ships were directed to remain in the area where the plane went down, about 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

Press Editors Are Special Guests Friday

Crowds Are Drawn During Afternoon By Running Races

The 54th Missouri State Fair comes to an end today. It is Aviation Day at the fair and a large number of "flying Missourians" are expected to come to the fair by plane, landing at the Sedalia Municipal Airport and at the landing strip near the fair.

According to figures on the fair attendance and in spite of the drop in attendance the opening Saturday and Sunday, the slight increase makes it appear as if it will equal if not pass the 1955 all-time record of 542,175.

Saturday's attendance was 48,364 as compared with that of a year ago when it was 56,237. The total for the eight days 472,434, compared with the total for the same days last year of 478,183.

Friday night the Missouri editors were special guests of the Missouri State Fair, visiting the various exhibits, seeing the feature attractions and being guests at a picnic supper given by Commissioner of Agriculture L. C. Carpenter and W. H. Ritzenthaler, secretary of the fair, on the lawn of the Ritzenthaler fairgrounds home.

The picnic gave the press from over the state an opportunity to meet old friends and make new acquaintances, and took on a resemblance of a big reunion.

The Fair, which usually drops attendance abruptly toward the end of the week, drew a large crowd Friday and the grounds were thronged with visitors, many obviously attracted by the harness and running horse races—the latter back at the State Fair after an absence of 17 years—and the night jalopy races. In addition to being Missouri Press day, it was St. Joseph, Jefferson City, Joplin and Northwest Missouri day, and there were large numbers of visitors from these areas.

The State Fair bait casting tournament for juniors was held Friday in the casting pool behind the Wildlife pavilion of the State Conservation Commission, which sponsors the event. It was won by 14-year-old Sam Lewis, 15642 East 24 Highway, Independence, Mo., who stacked up the outstanding score of 96 out of a possible 100 points. Sam crowded out Balthazer Darnay, 4115 Kenwood, Kansas City, the winner for 1955 and 1954, who tried for a third consecutive win to get the trophy permanently. Balthazer, 14, had 94 points.

George Billyou, 13, 3911 State Line, Kansas City, came in third with 88 points.

Working in a field of 23 contestants, 18-year-old Gary Clarkson of La Plata, Macon County, Mo., carried off championship honors in the 1956 4-H Skilled Tractor Operators' Contest. Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clarkson and a member of the Bear Creek 4-H Club, is a graduate of La Plata High School, has been in 4-H work for eight years, and for three years has carried on a tractor maintenance project. Six blue, seven red and ten white ribbons were awarded in the tractor contest.

In the judging in the Angus show, reported as the largest and best ever held at the Fair, the grand championship for a female went to the entry of Ralph L. Smith, Chillicothe, Mo., who also showed the grand champion bull, and won ten other awards.

The State Fair poultry show excelled all recent shows in number of exhibitors, exhibits, and variety of birds. Entries were from Illinois, Indiana, Kansas and Oklahoma as well as Missouri, with 63 varieties of standard bred birds and 63 varieties of bantams on display. There were a total of 1,756 birds in the poultry. Mrs. E. H. E. Walther, Boonville, Mo., had the first prize dozen brown eggs, which also was the champion dozen brown. Skyline Farm, Springfield, Mo., had the first place dozen of eggs.

The State Fair Horse Show was held for the final time at the 1956 Fair, with a program dominated by stake classes. This also was the final day of the harness and running horse races. In the Jef-

Running of the third annual Missouri Championship Jalopy Race at the Missouri State Fair proved one of the top drawing cards, with both grandstand and bleachers filled with tense, shouting spectators. They got their money's worth in thrills, for there were a number of crashes, and the railing around the half mile track came out much the worse, with long gaps where the cars had crashed through.

In the race, Torch Aleshire of Moberly repeated his 1955 victory and established a new 25-lap record of 12 minutes, 24 seconds, beating Jud Larson's 1954 time of 12:24:22. Larson, also in tonight's feature, finished fifth. Other feature finishers were Tom Mickels, of Marshall, Mo., Junior Hower, Kansas City, third; Art Dishiner, Kansas City, fourth; Ray Dudly, Columbia, sixth; Ken Taylor, Slater, seventh; Tubby Mast, Moberly, eighth; Howard McGinnis, Richmond, ninth, and Dave Allen, Kansas City, tenth.

EMERGENCY EXHISTS AT CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S CENTER—Mrs. Georgia Collins, Mrs. Robb Whitley, assistant director of the Center, and Mrs. Edgar Urton will be three women who will again help at the Center this Fall. Unless other volunteers pledge their services by Sept. 4, however, many of the handicapped children will find themselves without an adequate supervisory staff during the fall session. (Padgett photo)

Additional Volunteers Are Needed—

Chrippled Children's Center Is Faced With Serious Shortage of Teachers

Over 20 children, ranging from nursery to school age groups, may find themselves without an adequate number of teachers and helpers at the Crippled Children's Center after Labor Day unless Sedalia women will pledge themselves to help at the Center the Fall session, it was learned here today.

Mrs. Rudolph Swope, director of the non-profit Center for handicapped children, advised today that the Crippled Children's Center is in dire need of volunteer helpers when the new session opens on Sept. 4. A number of volunteer helpers have been assisting at the Center since it began over a year ago; however, whereas the enrollment formerly ran between ten to 12 pupils, the Center has now increased to approximately 22 children.

A special called training session will be held at the Crippled Children's Center on Wednesday, Aug. 29, at 7:30 p.m. for those women who will help at the Center during the fall session. Those interested in spending a few hours a week working with the handicapped children can either telephone Mrs. Swope at 5418 or voluntarily appear at the Center, which is located in the basement of the Nurses' Home at the Bothwell Hospital, next Wednesday night.

Mrs. Swope announced that special help is being needed to work with the nursery group and special class room pupils. Women with special attributes in instructing music, art, or other special activities are also needed. She pointed out that women's organizations in the city might want to sponsor some special teaching project which could be employed as occupational and other forms of therapy. Mrs. Swope gave as an example the fact that the various Garden Clubs in Sedalia had been helping during the summer session in helping the children in garden therapy. The pupils of the Center were highly fascinated with this type of activity and the results of the project were most rewarding.

The Crippled Children's Center is generally conducted for children of most ages who have been handicapped in some manner and cannot receive special training to fit their condition through the public schools. The Center has now employed a full time physical therapist and is making all efforts to employ a qualified speech therapist. Mrs. Swope and her staff are constantly taking special instructions in rehabilitation of handicapped children, as well as visiting various schools of a similar nature in order to improve the facilities of the local Center. This formal training is passed along to the volunteer helpers in leaders' training sessions held from time to time.

The Center is rapidly becoming known throughout Missouri as being one of the outstanding institutions of its type. Recently two families indicated they were considering moving to Sedalia in order they could place children with the Center.

The Crippled Children's Center is financed through public contribution, which is administered by a comparatively new welfare and health agency, Crippled Children's Center, Inc., which has as its officers and board members local people. It is necessary to draw helpers at the Center through volunteer assistance.

"There is nothing more rewarding than working with young people who are handicapped in some manner and to see the constant improvement these children are making through our Center", Mrs. Swope said in making her announcement that volunteer helpers are needed greatly at the local Crippled Children's Center.

School Days Near At Hand..

This is the season when we hear children muttering about returning to school, an event which will occur in Sedalia within ten days. One hears the all too familiar remark: "I hate school!"

This will be taken with a grain of salt by any knowing parent who observes youngsters' restlessness and senses their nostalgia for school despite verbal protestations.

Opening of school in the fall, after the vacation season has become a bit threadbare, is looked upon with anticipation by most children. Before school's end next year classroom routine will become drudgery, vacation time again will be prime in the cycle of eagerness.

This week will see much scurrying about by adults and children alike in last minute preparatory maneuvers to get ready for school, buying books, clothes and getting medical check-ups. Much of this has already been done by the practical planners.

When school opens next week the usual period of adjustments will be faced by pupils and teachers new to each other as result of classroom promotions and advanced study requirements. This can be the beginning of harmonious relationship or pave the way for a year of passive resistance defeating the purpose of teaching and learning technique.

Any old-timer looking back on his school days will recall almost with reverence those teachers who were kindly, considerate and devoted to their profession and to those children who frequently gave them a bad time. The best teachers are those who park their personal problems outside the schoolroom door and consider their pupils impartially despite the latters' varied temperaments.

Parents may play a benevolent role of encouraging harmony in the classroom if they would not take too seriously the initial appraisal of teachers by their children.

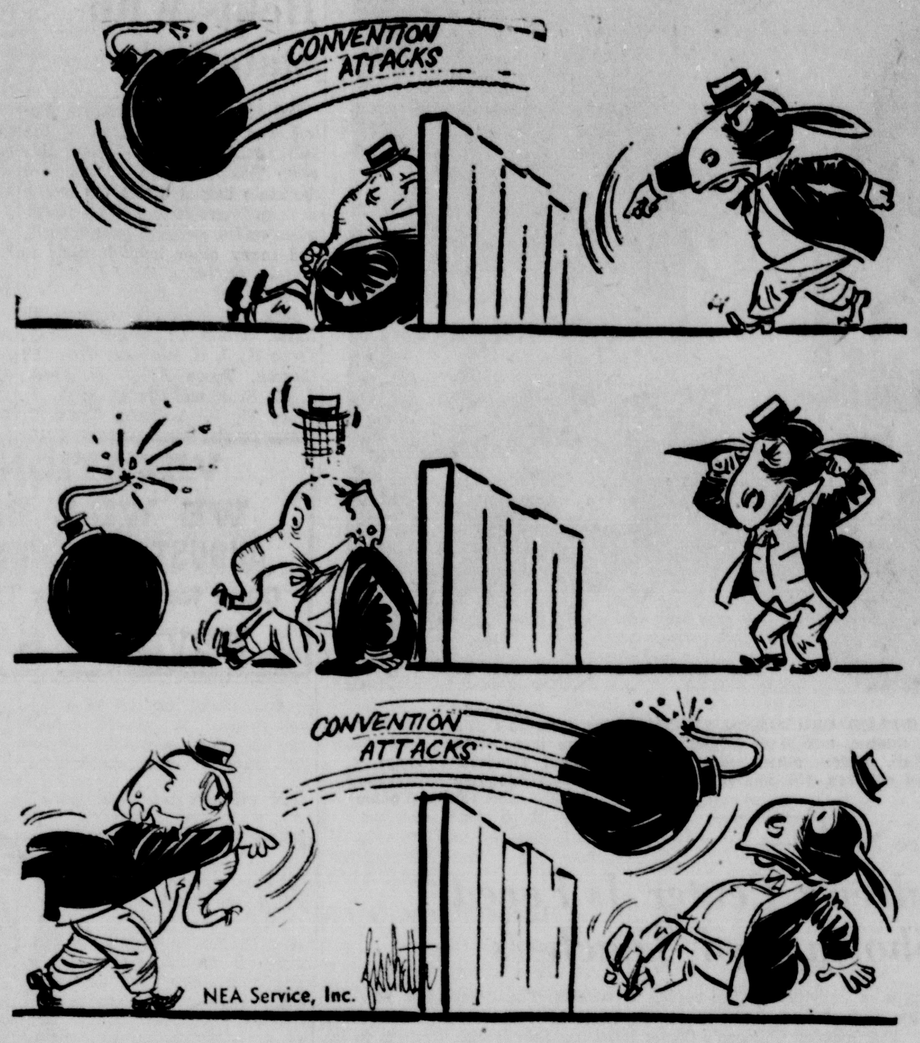
All too familiar is the exchange between parent and child: "How do you like your new teacher?" and the reply, "I don't like her. I think she's too mean."

Something to remember is that home life and parental training of pupils is often reflected in the classroom. Occasional misbehavior by a child, however, is not a blanket indictment of home training. Child deportment under the best of circumstances can be erratic, illogical and baffling.

But if discipline and harmony are to be maintained in our schools then there must be cooperation of parents with teachers when punishment is meted out for infraction of regulations in the schoolroom and on the playground.

Under such conditions the new school term should start off auspiciously, supporting the axiom of Benjamin Franklin:

"Let the child's first lesson be obedience, and the second will be what thou wilt."



Washington Merry-Go-Round—

Truman Will Go Fishing In Australia

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Ex-President Truman is taking another trip abroad, and taking it right at the beginning of the election campaign. He has booked passage to Australia on Pan American Airways Sept. 18. Unless the politicos persuade him to change his mind, this will be his answer to the question of whether or not he will campaign for Adlai Stevenson.

In brief, Mr. Truman, who was not entirely appreciated by Stevenson when he went whistle-stopping in 1952, has now decided to go fishing in Australia in 1956.

Only recently Truman returned from one trip abroad, the first he ever made as a private citizen. But now he will go to Australia and Asia to see a part of the world where his foreign aid policies played an important role in fighting communism.

Apparently Mr. Truman has reversed his Chicago statement that what Adlai Stevenson needs is help "from an old man from Missouri."

Ike and Zhukov

President Eisenhower's big secret campaign weapon, to be sprung around October, is to be a visit from Marshal Zhukov of Russia.

Coming at a time when the American public is intensely interested in peace, White House advisers are convinced the visit will have the same bombshell effect on Ike's "I shall go to Korea" promise made during the 1952 campaign.

They believe that a visit from Eisenhower's old wartime buddy will arouse none of the criticism that might come from a visit by Bulganin and Khrushchev, but will receive almost unanimous approval. It will especially stamp the President as a leader who can head the United States and Russia toward permanent peace.

Convention Aftermaths

Len Hall says the Republican motto is: "Stick With Ike." The Democrats say their motto will be: "Stick With Ike and Get Stuck With Dick." . . . Even Republicans are joking about the Nixon handshake. You feel the other fellow's pulse while you shake hands with him. (The other fellow is supposed to be Ike.) . . . Quoth Mayor "Last Hurrah" Curley of Boston, apropos of Averell Harriman's hope to be President: "Any candidate who comes to the convention with 96 votes and $200,000,000 has a chance." . . . Biggest scoop of the two conventions was scored by Bill Hearst—his quote from Harry Truman that Adlai couldn't win. . . . Roy Cohn, one time featured in the Army-McCarthy hearings, pulled wires for Governor Harriman at Chicago. He was especially influencing Nevada votes through J. Sourwine, former counsel for Senator Eastland's witch-hunting committee. Cohn and Harriman don't agree on anything political, but Harriman dropped the investigation of Cohn's well-known violation of New York National Guard training rules. . . . Members of the Missouri delegation couldn't get their favorite son, Senator Stuart Symington, on the telephone for two days. They wanted to switch to Adlai instead of sticking with Symington. . . . Harry Truman has given only one political contribution so far—to Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Guest Editorial—

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS: A Point Well Taken. A reader of the Wall Street Journal caught its editor the other day in a loose use of that well-worn phrase. "free enterprise," as a synonym for "private enterprise." What's the difference? The Journal's letter writer draws the distinction, and his point is well taken.

Most Americans, he concedes, have faith in private enterprise, "but where are those who want it to be free? Not the bicycle makes; not the doctors who band together in the A. M. A. to enforce restrictions; not the railroad men who want restrictions on the trucks and buses; not the airlines which fight for routes they would deny to others; not the farmers with their subsidies nor the carpenters who threaten to quit work if the owner of the house dares drive a nail in his own woodwork while the carpenter is on the premises."

Come to think of it, who is really for "free" enterprise? Doesn't every one of us — producer, consumer or whatnot—want some kind of legal or govenmental protection against what the other fellow might do if all enterprise were fully free? "Private enterprise" is a much better phrase for what we like to call the American economic system, and even that is a far from an adequate description.

Back To School

The bright little dark plain dresses in the store windows, the gay colored stripes on a dark background, the red sweaters, the charcoal slacks, the school bags and pencils can only mean one thing. It won't be long before the bells start ringing and the tread of marching feet will be education bound.

It will be a relief to many parents to settle down to routine again. And to the youngsters too. Even a vacation period can be boring. It will be fun to join one's classmates again, to get a look at the new teacher, to know whether one is going to sit in alphabetical order near one's friends or in front of the boy who is a ponytail jerker.

Better be thinking about that first proverbial composition, 'How I spent my vacation." School is sure to come and that composition will have to be written.

A Beach Boy Now

Ever wonder what happened to that daring North Korean pilot who delivered a Russian MIG fighter plane to the U.S. forces in Korea three years ago and collected a $100,000 reward?

Well, right now Noh Keun Suk is a beach boy at the summer colony at Rehoboth, Del. And he's the most popular figure among vacationing diplomats and government VIP's who converge at this resort.

Setting up umbrellas and beach chairs is strictly a summer job for the former flier who has just finished his first year at the University of Delaware.

People still question him about his feat of slipping a MIG out from under the noses of the Reds. But at this stage he's proudest of his near straight A school record and the fact that he made dean's list.

Dr. Jordan Answers—

Heart Muscles May Enlarge Because of Extra Labors

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

It is sometimes difficult for physicians, let alone those not medically trained, to distinguish clearly between a disease and hte physical or mental results thereof. The subject is often extremely complicated but can be considered in connection with today's first inquiry.

Q—Is there such a thing as an enlarged heart? Is an enlarged heart the result of high blood pressure?—Mrs. A. M. H.

A—For purposes of simplification, it may be said that there are two main kinds of "enlarged heart." In one the heart is enlarged because the chambers inside it are dilated and the surrounding heart muscle is therefore stretched and somewhat thin. In the other, the heart is enlarged because there is an increase in the size of the heart muscle itself, generally because the heart has had to work extra hard for a prolonged period of time. This would be roughly similar to the enlargement of the muscles elsewhere in the body from exercise.

Mrs. H's question implies that she has an enlarged heart and that she also has high blood pressure. Here one would suspect the second type of enlargement. If this is the case, it probably resulted from the extra work which the heart has had to do to pump against the higher blood pressure and that the enlargement was necessary in order to compensate for the greater work it had to do. In other words, this type of enlarged heart is the result of the high blood pressure (or some other factor) rather than a disease in itself. It is nature's way of meeting a difficulty.

Q—I am 60 years old and a widow living alone. If noisy children nearby jump on the porch, scream or make a lot of noise I can't stand it. I get nervous, excited and sick. The same thing happens if someone plays a TV loudly. Is there anything I can do?—Elizabeth.

A—People differ enormously on what annoys them and how much. I am sure that some are made most uncomfortable by things which do not bother others. Since it is impossible to keep children from being noisy at times, and almost equally difficult to keep one's neighbors from playing instruments loudly, the only solution to a problem of this sort would seem to be to move to a place which is as quiet as you can find.

A Teacher's Prayer

I do not cram their heads, he said
With knowledge in a book
That they might find just any time
They need it—and will look;
But every year I always hope
That somehow I may reach
Beyond the books of learning
And the subjects that I teach;
They may increase in wisdom,
They may receive degrees,
They may even rank among those
Who have earned their Ph. D's;
But if I leave fundamentals
Of the studies they will need
It is all, I'm very certain,
Necessary to succeed,
I want to leave them something more
Than only books reveal,
A something they will gain from me
That they will always feel.
Yes, I try to educate them
As I go along the way
And I hope that they're absorbing
A bit of what I say.
Some things I've taught may they retain
But mostly may I give
Them just a good perspective
And some rules by which to live.
For Lord, I don't expect them to Remember all they learn,
I only want to light a fire
That will forever burn;
To make them better people
When they take up their task
Of going on in future life,
That, God, is all I ask.

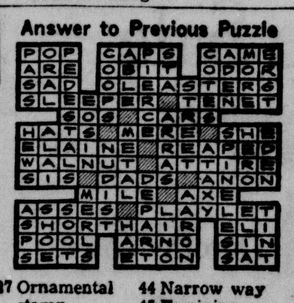
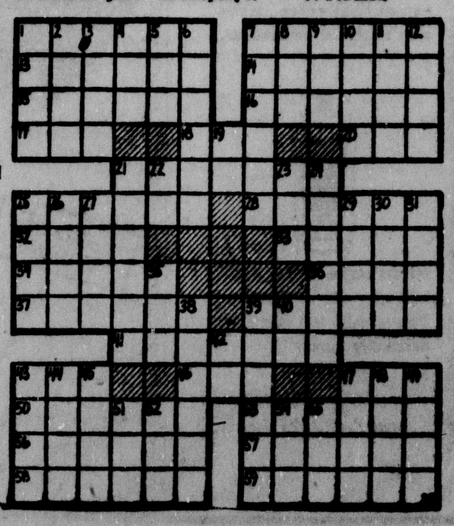
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Not So Conservative—

Nixon No 'Taft' Republican; He's Eisenhower All Way

By PETER EDSON

SAN FRANCISCO — Vice President Richard M. Nixon does not consider himself a "Taft" Republican.

In the event he should succeed to the presidency, Mr. Nixon would continue the policies of President Eisenhower.

These two statements can be made categorically on the basis of conversations with the vice president's closest staff associates and a study of records assembled by his office.

Two written questions were submitted to Mr. Nixon to clarify his position on these important points.

The answers to these questions provide the key to this Republican convention and to Gov. Harold Stassen's effort to challenge Vice President Nixon's renomination.

In the minds of some Republicans, Nixon's strongest support comes from the followers of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. These so-called Taft Republicans are critical of many of President Eisenhower's progressive and liberal policies.

It is the hope of these conservative Republicans that if or when the vice president should succeed to the presidency, he would abandon the Eisenhower program and return the Republican Old Guard to control of the party.

To settle these controversial issues these two questions were put to the vice president:

1—Do you consider yourself a Taft Republican or an Eisenhower Republican?

2—Does your personal political philosophy lean more to the conservative or the liberal Republican policies?

The answer to the first question, given as representative of the vice president's views, is that Mr. Nixon considers himself an Eisenhower Republican.

This answer is amplified with the explanation that the vice president considers the differences between Eisenhower and Taft were more pronounced on foreign than on domestic issues.

Senator Taft was an isolationist. President Eisenhower believes more in international cooperation, which Vice President Nixon also supports.

On some domestic issues, Mr. Nixon believes Taft was more progressive than Eisenhower has been. Taft's public housing program is mentioned as an example of his liberalism.

Taft's reputation as a conservative is based largely on his labor legislation record and the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947. Nixon as a congressman voted for that act.

It is pointed out, however, that Nixon's voting record in the 80th Congress closely parallels that of Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts. Herter is the man whom Governor Stassen preferred as vice presidential nominee because of his supposedly more liberal views in endorsing Eisenhower's program.

Governor Herter outlined this similarity between his own and Nixon's voting record in his speech nominating Nixon for the vice presidency.

As further evidence of Nixon's liberalism, a 1949 speech he made in Los Angeles is cited. Nixon here outlined a GOP program which was close to what became the Eisenhower program of 1953—four years later.

As Mr. Nixon himself puts it, he is no "Johnny-Come-Lately liberal."

The vice president can also point to his 1952 activities for Eisenhower before the hot GOP convention in Chicago—in which he did not support Senator Taft.

The vice president's position today is that he was all out for Eisenhower then, he has supported him and his policies ever since and he will be for him and his program in the future.

Dope Addicts Steal Mail From Homes

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield disclosed today that theft of mail from home boxes by drug addicts has become a major problem for postal inspectors fighting an unprecedented high in postal crimes.

The disclosure, Summerfield said, is contained in a report from Chief Postal Inspector David H. Stephens for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1956.

The report revealed postal inspectors caused an unprecedented total of 6,852 arrests for postal crimes during the fiscal year. (A total of 98.8 percent of those brought to trial for their crimes were convicted.)

The 6,852 figure compares with 6,631 arrests in the previous 1955 fiscal year, itself a record year.

Of the total arrests in fiscal 1956, thefts from home mail boxes accounted for 3,113, or 48 per cent of the total.

The fact that drug addicts crazed for narcotics and needing money to get drugs accounted for many of these thefts is illustrated by reports from New York City inspectors showing that well over 35 per cent of those arrested for home mail box depredations were addicts.

The national increase in drug addiction has been paralleled by increases in home mail thefts in other areas of the nation also, he noted.

In some other important categories of postal crime for fiscal 1956, Mr. Summerfield reported that postal inspectors caused 470 arrests for burglary, 274 for mail fraud, 19 for holdups, 284 for forgery of money orders and postal savings certificates, 224 for sending obscene matter through the mails, 49 for theft of government funds and property, 17 for sending scurrilous or defamatory mail, eight for sending poisons and six for sending explosives.

Commenting on the 3,113 arrests for depredations of home mail boxes, Summerfield pointed out the growth of this crime has created hardship and even serious deprivation in many instances for persons dependent on receiving government or private checks through the mails, such as those who are retired or disabled. Often, it may take them several months to have a check replaced.

Postal patrons can help the enforcement work of postal inspectors by keeping mail boxes locked and reporting stolen checks promptly to their postmasters. And merchants and others in the habit of cashing checks can assist by making certain who their endorsers are.

Careless cashing of checks often may mean a serious loss for a merchant, Summerfield observed. The person cashing a forged check in virtually all cases must suffer the loss himself.

The problem of thefts from home mail boxes is accompanied by a related problem involving operations of gangs of thieves who concentrate on stealing chceks at other points.

One such operation recently halted in Washington, D.C., for example, involved theft only of commercial checks placed in letters and piled in bundles against the mail boxes in lobbies of business buildings. The operators, with expertly forged identification as "government officials," inspectors reported, had little trouble in cashing a reported 300 checks for $25,000.

At the same time, Summerfield noted that out of the many cases of mail fraud halted by the inspectors in fiscal 1956, many involved considerable loss for citizens. In only 110 cases ot of the total the amount in each case that was filched from the public was more than $10,000, and the total of all these 110 cases was $10.5 million. He urged the public to take care when accepting offers, solicitations and the like through the mails.

Service Club Addition Nears Final Stages

Whiteman Air Force Base's Service Club addition, under construction since Feb. 6, is well ahead of the contract work schedule and should be completed the first week of November according to Glenn Brockman, deputy installation engineer.

Being built at a cost of $218,641, the addition will more than double the present size of the club. A 60 by 90 foot ballroom, a large stage, reading and writing rooms, sound proof music room, conference room, a new kitchen and a 20 by 30 foot photo hobby room are some of the features of this latest project in Whiteman's modernization and improvement program.

Constructed between the present lounge and new ballroom is a huge fireplace which will add much to the attractiveness of the general lounge area.

Also planned for this development is the construction of a 30 by 55 foot concrete patio with wrought iron railing on the east side of the ballroom.

When completed the entire club will contain 20,000 square feet, almost half the size of a regulation football field, and will be completely air conditioned.

Lt. Col. Harry W. Robb, base commander, said, "The ballroom and game rooms will be completed in pine paneling and other rooms will be panelled in shadow wood. He added, "The club will certainly be one of the finest in the Strategic Air Command and should provide the airmen with every facility for enjoyable recreation and relaxation."

Donates Fund To Hospital For Memorial

"Our era is fast passing, but we loved Sedalia and its people" Mrs. Marion S. West of Pasadna, Calif., wrote when she sent a donation of $2,400 to the John H. Bothwell Memorial Hospital to furnish two memorial rooms of the new wing in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. West.

Mrs. West is the widow of Charles E. West who for many years had a book store in Sedalia. They sold the book store to Arthur R. Scott, and went to the state of Colorado to reside. Later Mr. West died and Mrs. West now lives in a hotel in Pasadena near her sister.

"Why not do it now while you are improving your hospital?" Mrs. West said in her letter, and added, "May many patients be cheered by the comfort of these rooms."

For the past two years Mrs. West has been corresponding with the hospital setting up this memorial.

"The hospital board is very appreciative of this most gracious gift" Glenn Lewis, member of the board said. He went on to say that the hospital had received two or three other gifts of this type in the last year and he thought it was a nice trend. Sedalians have not given such memorial gifts and remembrances like the poeple of other cities until recently and it means so much to a town. The hospital has been self-supporting but such gifts provide extra things for it that are needed. This is a particularly wonderful gift, he said, not only because of the large amount of the donation but because a former Sedalian has remembered the town and loved it well enough to want to give this gift.

Many people still remember the Wests. Both were prominent workers in the First Congrgatieonal Church here and Mrs. West hasn't forgotten the church, either. The First Congregational Church federated with the Presbyterian Church some years ago and in their recent remodeling program building at Sixth and Osage Mrs. West sent a large check as a gift to the church. She also sent money for two flags for the church, an American flag and a Christian flag.

Mr. and Mrs. West were always kind and charitable people. Whenever they saw a need they did something to help. They often visited the poor farm that the county had then and saw to the needs of those who had little.

Mrs. West was an artist. Even in those days whn things were so much cheaper than today she would often receive $50 or $75 for a painting. She painted china, too, and taught art to many young Sedalians. Her studio was in the back of the store.

Mr. West was a far sighted merchant. Long before other people began to build up Christmas and Easter he was making special trips to New York to buy merchandise for those two days when people gave gifts. He filled his store with many items that would make lovely gifts for those two seasons and other occasions

Friendships came easy for the Wests. They had many, many friends while they lived in Sedalia and continued to keep in touch after they left here with many people they had been close to. Mrs. West has never forgotten those friendships and the happy days she spent here. Her gift to the hospital now will bring many nice memories of her back to Sedalians who knew he.. It will bring, too, grateful appreciation from an entire city.

Your Wardrobe
by Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

Most of us like to create an individual look for ourselves, yet keep within the current fashion trend. When a new season approaches many times we just buy things because we like them and we know we will be needing it. But what the smart dresser and the shrewd shopper does is this—get out your last year's clothes and see what is wearable and for what occasions they can be worn. You have an idea of the activities and places you will be going and the type of clothes necesary. Then jot down what you will need. You may have a dress for dressy affairs, or you may have a set of accesories that can be used with a dress or suit that you are planning to buy. You may have forgotten skirts or blouses that needs something to wear with it. Very frequently you think the suits and dresses you put away were in excellent condition yet when you get them out they don't look as good as you anticipated. I think by planning your wardrobe in this manner you will find you will always have the correct outfit for on-the-spur-of-the-moment occasions, will always look well-dressed and that your wardrobe dollar will go much further.

Plastic Fabric Helps Cover Unsightly Wall

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If there were a Society to Prevent Cruelty to Husbands it probably would bar any working man from menial labor on his vacation. But no organization exists because the men wouldn't tolerate it. Not for a minute.

Dad has been looking at cracked walls and damaged ceiling for months now, and he's itching to get into the handyman act. The roof didn't have a good winter either, and he might even give that a look-see. What better time than vacation to take it easy and do some necessary chores at the same time.

One easy way to do over a ceiling is with the same plastic coated fabric that is used on walls. This material hides unsightly cracks and defects as well as spots and discolorations. This type of ceiling decoration is particularly popular in small homes where expansion attics with sloping ceilings are being transformed into rooms to accommodate growing families.

Here's how to make the job proceed with professional smoothness.

The entire ceiling should be sized with discolorations and spots sanded down and given extra sizing. The required number of strips for the ceiling should be measured and cut. Strips handle easily if rolled over a cardboard mailing tube or shade roller.

Each strip should be numbered. This is important, especially with solid colors as every other strip should be reversed to insure color uniformity.

Before hanging, snap a chalked string to make a line 24 inches out from the wall to provide a starting point for hanging the material which comes pre-trimmed 24 inches wide. Then apply the paste directly to the ceiling. This is the secret of successful ceiling decoration, experts say.

Then take the rolled strip, unroll it against the ceiling while you smooth behind it with a stiff brush.

Any pattern should be matched on the ceiling and the seams butted. Material should be trimmed with a razor blade at the edge of the ceiling. Roll the seams to make them fit tight. Wash down each strip with a damp cloth to work out air bubbles and remove excess paste.

This washable plastic coated fabric comes in 20 solid colors. You might choose white. There are charming patterns and textures available to suit any decor.

SMOOTH STRIPS with a stiff brush as you unroll them.

SIZE CEILING thoroughly and then apply paste directly to the ceiling.

ROLL ALL SEAMS with a rubber roller to make them fit snugly.

Transparent Plastic Makes Patio Roof

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

The most expensive paved patio serves no useful purpose when storm clouds belch rain and you have to head for cover. If it's to remain useful in inclement weather, obviously your patio needs a roof.

Just as obviously, a standard opaque roof would darken rooms adjoining the patio by standing between them and a good bit of daylight. The alternate choice is a roof made of lightweight but strong, translucent plastic.

A plastic roof is rainproof when properly installed, yet admits a diffused 65 to 95 per cent of the sun's light, depending on the color of the plastic you select. Deep blue or green panels of course shut out more light than yellow or white ones.

Corrugated plastic panels 34 or 40 inches wide and eight, 10 or 12 feet in length are suitable for patio roofing. While panel width is largely a matter of preference, the lengths you select will be governed by the depth of the patio—that is, how far it extends out from the house wall.

If the distance is greater than 12 feet, the extra length is gained by overlapping shorter panels end to end. A six-inch end-lap, sealed with translucent mastic, is sufficient.

For the supporting framework, use either two-by-six or four-by-four rafters, spacing them 32 inches (center to center) for the 34-inch panels and 38 inches for 40-inch panels.

The correct rafter spacing is important. You'll see why later as you work across the roof nailing the panels in place. Each should overlap one corrugation along the side of the preceding panel, and you must nail through the overlap. If the lap doesn't fall directly over a rafter, you've nothing to nail to.

Additional support and nailing surface for the plastic panels is gained by installing cross rafters in parallel lines no more than four feet apart. The short cross-pieces should be cut to fit between rafters and toenailed in place.

Good housekeeping and adequate illumination help reduce the accident rate in home workshops.

Home Workshops Are Often Potentially Dangerous Now

BY MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

The home workshop is fast becoming an American institution. Many new house plans set aside space wherein Dad can dawdle over do-it-yourself projects. It has been said that this is good for his general health and welfare.

Yet, his workshop is also the most potentially dangerous room in the house — a fact which cancels out "health and welfare" if he isn't careful.

Most workshop accidents result from mishandling of tools and materials. The hazards here are mental. Only common sense, alertness and cautious working habits can minimize them.

On the other hand, major contributory causes of workshop accidents are physical hazards—like poor visibility and clutter. Getting rid of them is a snap.

Here are recommendations made by the Loss Prevention Department of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co.:

ILLUMINATION — There should be a separate work light for each permanently installed piece of equipment and one for every 10 feet of work bench length. One-hundred-and-fifty-watt inside white bowl lamps, about four feet above the bench, are adequate for general illumination.

For prolonged or critical work—at point of operation of circular saws, jointers, drill presses and other power tools — higher levels are required. Reflector spots are good here.

Wire cages for work lights near moving machines and lumber stockpiles are a wise investment.

HOUSEKEEPING — A neat and clean shop pays off in safety as well as in appearance. Provide racks or hangers for hand and portable power tools. Keep them in place when not in use; a stray connector cord can get tangled up with a moving saw blade with disastrous results.

Keep sawdust handy to mop up spilled grease and oil. Be sure all solvents like benzine or lacquer thinner are in metal containers with self-closing or safety spouts, stored in a metal cabinet. See that lumber, tubing, sheet metal and scrap are kept from underfoot.

SHOP WIRING — Don't overload your wiring with heavy-duty equipment and expect it to work properly. Have permanent three-conductor wiring installed and avoid use of portable extension cords. The third wire may be used for dead-metal grounding of electrical tools — a sure way to avoid serious electric shock.

Motors will slow down, overheat and burn out if sufficient voltage isn't provided. Besides damaging equipment and creating a fire hazard, reduced speeds often make band saws stick, break and cause injuries.

If possible, put all workshop equipment, lights and outlets on a main switch near the door. It reduces the chance that you'll leave a soldering iron or glue pot turned on when you quit for the day.

A lock on the switch will keep children from turning on the power. If not a lock, remove fuses when leaving the shop.

Detroit became a city on Oct. 24, 1815, and never was a part of a township.

Lighting Helps

Time was when the family parlor was used only for company and, often, only special company at that.

Today's homemaker knows that her living room must serve not only for special entertaining and holiday parties, but also for everyday family living.

Like a well-chosen basic dress that can serve many needs, the living room above is just as versatile. Its secret is its light conditioning.

If you are redecorating your living room, borrow a few lighting features.

The same light-condition recipes can be used in almost any living room to make it more attractive, spacious, usable, flexible, and visually attractive.

Good lighting starts with your choice of wall and floor coverings. Medium walls, slightly darker flooring and white or near white ceilings make rooms more visually comfortable.

Cut From Job

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Ten-year-old Samuel Gearhart probably is smarter than anyone thinks.

He suffered a slight cut on his left index finger and was given hospital treatment and a promise that he would never again be put in a position to suffer such an injury.

Sammy grinned when he heard this.

You see he cut his finger while helping his mother wash the dinner dishes.

Barbour Grandson Apeears in Magazine

A story by Wally Westmore, make-up man, entitled: "I Make Up Hollywood" was featured in the magazine.

William Lansing's grandparents on the other side of the house live in Sedalia. They are Mr. and Mrs. Almond N. Barbour, 1123 Crescent Drive. Carl, father of the baby, is a native Sedalian and was formerly employed on the Democrat-Capital news staff.

Sedalia Bee Jays Play Illinois Team

Three-Game Playoff Series Will Decide Missouri BJ Championship

The Sedalia Bee Jays, winners of the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League, will travel to Collinsville, Ill., today to play the McMackin Buick club which was the Eastern Missouri Ban Johnson championship team.

The first game of the best-of-three series will start at 2:30 p. m. today at Fletcher Stadium in Collinsville for the final playoff series in the combined Ban Johnson leagues. Collinsville will come to Sedalia for the second game and the third (if necessary).

Sedalia Manager Russell Gilmore will probably start his ace fireballer Clyde Kubli, who also pitched for Smith-Cotton High in the State High School tournament when S-C lost out to St. Louis Beaumont High in the finals. Gilmore has several former Smith-Cotton stars on the squad.

The best winning streak Collinsville Manager Roy Lee has been able to put together was seven straight, with a season record of 20 wins and four losses. Sedalia won its last 15 games in a row in regular season play to finish with a 23-8 record.

Jim Fall, Larry Mines, Bobby Case, James Harvey and Charlie Newman have been furnishing the power for the Bee Jays this season while Collinsville's long ball strength is made up of Rich Rogers, Dave Nicholson, Ralph Sackett, Jack Parker and Sherwin Whitlow.

During the Central Missouri playoff between Sedalia and Brookfield and Sedalia, which lasted three games, the Bee Jays connected for four home runs. Bobby Case of Sedalia, one of the finest shortstops in the league, has stolen 26 bases in 24 games for the regular season along with four stolen bases in the playoff.

Gilmore's pitching staff consists of Clyde Kubli (8-2), Kenny Buhlig (5-4), Elroy Burton (6-0), and Kenny Hayob (4-2). Collinsville's hurling strength lies in Bob House (4-2), Jerry Koelling (4-1), and Royce Stroud (5-1).

Probable lineups for opening game:

Phil Rizzuto Given Unconditional Release By Yankees Saturday

NEW YORK. Aug. 25 (AP)—Phil Rizzuto, aging shortstop, was given his unconditional release by the New York Yankees today to make room for the return of veteran Outfielder Enos (Country) Slaughter from Kansas City.

Slaughter was acquired earlier today from the Athletics. The Yankees said Rizzuto was being released so that he might determine his own future. It is known that he auditioned for a job as broadcaster of the Baltimore games in 1957 last week.

The player going to the Athletics in payment for Slaughter will not be named until after this season. However, the player was identified as a regular with the Yankees now and would be a regular with the Athletics next season.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

NEXT Friday night on the beautiful gridiron at the Jennie Jaynes Stadium, Central Missourians will have an opportunity to see two All-Star football teams comprised of former high school greats in action. The first annual All-Star game to be sponsored by the Sedalia Rotary Club will be played at that time.

Since Aug. 15, the cream of various high schools in Central Missouri and that of high schools in the Pony Express Conference have been working hard to get shapened up for this big event. These players, all former football stars from their respective high schools, graduated from school last spring and this fall head for their pick of colleges to begin their college careers.

What could be finer than to have the Jennie Jaynes Memorial Stadium packed and jammed with football fans. It would be the real send off to college football for these boys who hope to become stars in schools of their choosing.

Those who attend will see the first preview of football for 1956, and there is little doubt left in my mind those in the stands will be seeing several boys who within a short time will become grid stars in a faster brand of football.

Of course the game is being played to make money, but the money made from this football game goes to the Rotary Club's activities for children. It will go for activities of great importance to Sedalia children of which few people of Sedalia know about, but which many children know of but unaware of from where it comes.

Every Rotarian has a gang of tickets to be sold, every Rotarian it is hoped will dispose of his 50 tickets. Those who haven't gotten their tickets had better "button hole" the first Rotarian and get their tickets if they expect to get into the the stadium.

Buy your ticket and avoid a jam at the ticket office. Just walk through the gate and hand your ticket in. It's simple, and assures the Rotarians at least an idea of what the "advance" is.

TODAY at the Missouri State Fair the feature attraction will be the 100-mile stock car race to be run on the mile dirt track. It's bound to be another thriller for the speed hungry fans, not only in speed but the watching of these drivers trying to get to the first place "slot."

Friday night's Jalopy (excuse me, I mean Modified Stock Car) races provided a real attraction. For the first time in the history of Missouri's fair night racing was held. It proved a real drawing card, and likewise provided some excitement for the more than 13,000 which packed the grandstand and bleachers.

Al Sweeney, of National Speedways which promoted the speed events of the fair this year, is to be congratulated over the packed jammed wheel of speed. Sweeney arranged the three days of Big Car racing which the fans enjoyed. His variety of such entertainment certainly pleased thousands of Missourians, other than Big Cars, the motorcycles, entertained those people who want that type entertainment; then the Jalopies, and the stock cars.

On Golf

By FRANKIE REYNOLDS

Interest in Sedalia's first City Golf Championship appears to be mounting steadily while the qualifying date draws near. The event promises to attract the cream of Sedalia's crop of golfers who will vie for the championship runoff to be limited to the 32 low qualifiers next Sunday, Sept. 2.

A compromise plan under which half of the tournament will be played at Countryview and half at Country Club, will place players from both courses on even terms. None of the golfers will have an advantage because of their ability to play best on a particular type of course, on grass greens or sand greens.

Although the affair will be equalized in that respect, the U.S.G.A. rule on playing the ball as it lies will produce the real championship players in this tournament. Most of the local golfers are not accustomed to playing under that condition and will prove themselves out what class players they really are when it comes to hitting shots from close lies. U.S.G.A. rules will be observed throughout the tournament.

All entering the event must do so by Thursday evening, Aug. 30, to be eligible for Sunday's qualifying round. Starting times and pairings will then be published Friday evening and Saturday morning.

—o—

Sedalia Country Club's second junior tournament of the season, a 36-hole medal play affair, drew only a handful of entries Saturday. This was quite a contrast to the field in the club's Junior Championship played recently.

Let's hope this isn't indicative of a decline in interest among the younger swingers. Especially not after both Sedalia courses responded well to the expressed desires of the juniors for more tournament competition.

I'm sure the two clubs are eager to promote a more active junior golfing program if there is an indication the younger set will support it. And only wide participation will insure a stable junior program.

Little LEAGUERS

The annual Little League picnic for both major and minor team players and their parents will be held Tuesday night at the Shelterhouse in Liberty Park.

An all star game between the 12-year olds of both divisions will be played following the picnic. Awards will be presented to teams and individuals just before the game.

All are urged to attend and are requested to bring a covered dish and their own table service.

National League 12-year-olds will practice Monday at 5:30 p. m. at the Little League Stadium. All 12-year-old players in the league are to be present.

Takes Jeff City CC Trophy—

Beautiful Frisco a Winner In Final Harness Racing Day

The Missouri State Fair wound up four days of harness racing and running horse races Friday with some of the fastest times of the week.

In the Jefferson City Chamber of Commerce trophy race, a 22 class Pace for a purse of $1,000, Day Mangus, Kirksville, racing Beautiful Frisco won for the second time in the four day schedule with two straight heats of 2:05 2-5 and 2:05. Beautiful Frisco also won the fourth race the first day. Gene Gosch, executive manager of the Jefferson City Chamber of Commerce, presented the trophy.

This might have been called Kirksville day since another entry by Day Mangus, Volo Clear Advice won the first race, a 22 class Trot for a purse of $1,000, with times of 2:07 3-5 and 2:06. Ed Duensing, superintendent of the speed department, presented the Roy S. Kemper Trophy. Duensing, who was a close friend of Kemper, was responsible for the memorial trophy and presented it on behalf of Mrs. Kemper. Duensing has been an official of the State Fair for 36 consecutive years.

Dana Wingay, owned by James L. Donald, Bonaparte, Ia., won the second race, although Nimble Dust, Joseph R. Martin, Kansas City, took the second heat with a time of 2:17 2-5. Dana Wingay's time in the first and third heat was 2:11 2-5 and 2:27 2-5. The trophy for this 30 class and three-year-old Pace event with a purse of $500 was presented by Miss Patty Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Carpenter. Carpenter is Commissioner of Agriculture.

The fourth harness race of the day, a 30 class and three-year-old trot with a purse of $500, also required three heats. Lotta Cash, N. B. Ewing, Rutledge, Mo. took the first heat with a time of 2:09 2-5 but Mrss Frisco Maid, owned by another Kirksville man, Vere Treasure, took the second and run-off heat with times of 2:08 and 2:11 2-5. The trophy was presented by Miss Joan Ritzenthaler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ritzenthaler. Ritzenthaler is secretary of the Missouri State Fair.

The fifth race of the day was a running race for ¾ of a mile and was taken by War Deal for Jack Powell, Altus, Okla. in 1:13 2-5. Bank Blub, J. E. Bish, Bloomfield, Ia., was second, with Lady Litchfield, Charles Beam, Arnett, Okla. third. Mrs. Gertrude McFarland, chief clerk of the Missouri State Fair, presented the trophy.

In the final race of the day, a 1⅛ mile running race for a purse of $1000, Square Jack, G. H. Finnel, Vinita, Okla. was first with 1:55, Party Request, R. J. D. Asks Drivers To Work Hard At Safety

Two million Missourians are being asked to work on Labor Day this year even though it's a national holiday.

Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, Highway Patrol superintendent, said, "I'm asking every driver in Missouri to work and work hard at safe and sane driving as they use the highways during the Labor Day holiday period." Members of the Patrol will be working equally hard in an all-out effort to curb violations and reduce accidents.

During the Labor Day weekend last year from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday, rural Missouri highways were the scene of 217 accidents in which 168 persons were injured and 12 persons were killed throughout the state during the holiday period.

Labor Day, in addition to being the last of the summer holidays, brings to an end the summertime slow down and live safety campaign which was participated in by cities and towns throughout Missouri. To date, this year's program has been successful with the death count for the period running below that of last year even though traffic this year has been heavier. However, a heavy death count over this year's Labor Day period would completely change the picture.

"Safe driving requires work at the wheel — brainwork," Waggoner said. "Before any driver can cope with the dangers of highway driving, he must be consciously aware that danger is actually there. Safety is not automatic. It must be worked for just like any other worth-while goal."

Seeds, Grains Are Judged By Official

The usual high quality of past Missouri State Fair Seeds, grains and crops was evident in the 1956 Sedalia exposition show.

L. E. Cavanah, Secretary of the Missouri Seed Improvement Association, Columbia, Mo. served as judge of the competition. The ham and bacon show will be judged at a later date by meat specialists.

Robert S. McClelland, Gallatin assisted by Mrs. Allie F. Thurlo, Jefferson City and Garrett M. Art Entries Are Highest In Ten Years

Entries in the Fine Arts Building were the largest this year in the experience of Miss Ida Cruzan, Sedalia Superintendent for the past ten years of the Missouri State Fair exhibit. Edyth Couey, Sedalia, assistant during most of these years stated that all space for hanging pictures was crowded in the 1956 Sedalia exhibit.

Heaviest entries were in photography which were judged by Gerald R. Massie, Jefferson City who commented that there were some remarkable photographs on display. Miss Marie Larkin, St. Louis, Mo. judged paintings and crafts.

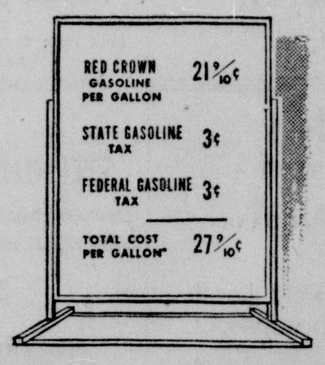
GOOD ROADS ARE NECESSARY EVEN THOUGH THEY COST A LOT!

EVERYBODY wants good roads. You do. We do. They are needed for business, for pleasure, for defense. And everybody realizes that highways cost a whopping amount of money. But not everybody understands just where the money for good, safe highways comes from...

The largest single source is direct gasoline taxes

For example: A typical price of STANDARD RED CROWN Gasoline in mid-Missouri is 21 9/10-cents excluding direct taxes. For this 21 9/10-cents we find crude oil, transport it, refine it, and then deliver the gasoline to your independent Standard Dealer. And your dealer's mark-up, covering his costs and what he earns for serving you, is also included in the same 21 9/10-cents.

State and federal direct taxes total another 6 cents—which is equal to more than one-fourth of the price of the gasoline alone.* All of these taxes go for roads.



That's quite a tax bill. But we all know that reasonable taxes are necessary. We are just trying to remind our customers and friends of a simple economic fact. Subtract the taxes from the price you pay for RED CROWN Gasoline and you will see that an amount equal to more than one-fourth of the price of the gasoline itself goes for direct taxes.

*This figure does not include the Municipal Gasoline Tax imposed in certain communities.

SEPTEMBER TRAGEDY

No, it isn't those wrists thrusting so bare below the too-short sleeves. Nor the high-water effect of last year's school shorts. That's a predicament. The tragedy lies in the days between Septembers . . . those days that flew by with no record of the child who lived them in fun and beauty. Keep those childhood days forever in photographs to cherish always.

No Further Complaints

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Judge M. C. Lewis Jr. reports that a marital triangle case was settled out of court — in fact, right outside the courtroom.

The wife was accused of making telephone threats to another woman. The judge took no punitive action, but admonished the two women to leave each other alone.

Wife, hubby and the other woman left the courtroom together. Seconds later there was the sound of a vigorous slap. A witness told the court it was delivered by the "other woman."

No further complaints.

Summer Dog Care

BOSTON, Mass. (AP) — Pets can suffer heat prostration just as well as humans, says the Massachusetts Veterinary Assn.

Never, the association says, lock an animal in a car standing for hours in the sun, or in tightly-closed apartments and hot, stuffy rooms. Water should be made available to them at all times.

If the animal shows signs of severe panting, weakness and apparent helplessness it's an indication of approaching prostration. To combat this serious danger, the association says, the animal's body should be swabbed with cool water.

If the pet's discomfort is not quickly eased, death can follow quickly.

The Victoria Regis, a giant water lily, grows leaves as much as four feet across.

EYES GO BACK TO SCHOOL, TOO

The child who sees well learns more. Vision is intelligence. The development of the normal child is in direct ratio to his visual efficiency. It is eminently worth while to have the school child's eyes examined carefully once each year because many visual problems result from demanding more of the child than he is prepared to do.

Most children have eyes which are adapted better for distance seeing than for near work. Many noted authorities say that more than half of all school children have inadequate visual skills to achieve successfully in their studies.

Optometry has developed a comprehensive series of analytical tests to determine the student's ability to maintain concentrated near use of the eyes and visual functions, to get meaning from the printed page, and to do this without impairing distance vision or disturbing visual skills.

The Missouri Optometric Association suggests that every student—adult in college and beginner in kindergarten alike — should have a thorough vision analysis before starting to school.

School Brief Case Is Important Item

A smart school bag or brief case is an important accessory for modern youngsters, say the Luggage and Leather Goods Manufacturers of America.

That's why it's important to select a style that's easy to carry, balanced properly for good posture—and, smart looking too.

New bag stylings provide ample room for books, notes and lunches.

They may be in plaids, prints, nylon or leather; often decorated with cartoon characters.

Older students will choose handsome, slimly-styled, fine leather brief cases with lots of room inside for all scholastic needs.

Two Smith-Cotton Graduates Receive Scholarships to MU

Two of the 1956 Smith-Cotton graduates have been awarded scholarships to Missouri University.

Porbably there are times when his questions or answers make you wonder. There's no doubt about it, experience is one of the best teachers in terms of years, you've had a longer education than your child. But there's one experience your child may be going through which you may know little about and which, on one topic anyway, makes him score higher than you.

That topic is schools — school facilities, school teachers, school needs, school problems.

Unless you are a youngster in school today or a teacher, or a school administrator, or a PTA member, or a school improvement worker you can't be fully aware of the problems pinching our schools.

In many communities overcrowding is so serious that children are on double sessions or sitting two to a seat. Less than one-half of the new teachers needed this year will be provided by the young men and women graduating into the profession. Certainly, new schools are being built — but not enough.

Perhaps you've read about these things, seen some of the Better Schools campaign advertisements, or heard friends discuss them. But still, do you know as much as your child?

He knows how many children are in his class with him. He knows how many seats there are. How much time his teacher can spend with him personally. How much sense his textbooks make. How his lessons are presented to him. Without your frame of reference, he may not know how he is faring comparatively, but he certainly knows whether his school is a pleasant and challenging place in which to spend his days.

If you want to find out more about your local schools, you're in a much better position to do so today than your parents were when YOU were a child.

For one thing, the groundwork has been laid. Citizens all over the nation are showing an intelligent concern for their schools and — even more encouraging to school people — they're showing an ability to grapple with the problems and come up with solutions. Citizens are doing this every day at community conferences on their schools, at PTA meetings, at local meetings of national organizations such as Kiwanis, Lions, etc., at school board meetings and at citizens committee meetings.

The citizen has found that there are many channels now open to him when he comes to the point that he wants to do something about his schools. Our Council, has a free booklet which tells about these channels. It's called, "Let's Get Our Schools Ready Now!" and a copy is free from Better Schools, 9 East 40th Street, New York, 16, New York.

We also have a good day-to-day textbook for the parents who want to bone up on schools, "Better Schools," carries information on school improvement from all over the nation. A sample copy is your for the asking. Our readers tell us this is a good way to learn what the problems are — and to get some of the answers.

Vocational Coordinator—

Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney Miller Met in Sedalia School System

By HAZEL LANG

"There is nothing important about me," said Elizabeth Miller, "just write about Pinkney. I haven't done anything but keep house and teach school. I don't have a hobby, I don't belong to any organizations."

What she meant was that she had never glittered in the limelight but Elizabeth Berthouex Miller has been one of the most successful women in Sedalia. Her family settled in this community 70 years ago and she has deep roots in the town. Here she went to school, began her teaching, married a young man in her own profession, made a home, became the mother of a son, raised him to manhood, took up her teaching again when she was badly needed, spent a great deal of time with her parents when they began to fail in health as long as they lived—no—she hasn't done much—just led the busiest life possible in giving of her love, her ability, her time, herself wherever duty called.

Pinkney, her husband, is not a native Sedalian, but has certainly made a niche for himself here. He came from Millersville where everybody is named Miller. His grandparents were own cousins and were both Millers. Which side of the house Millersville was named for, Pinkney doesn't know, but anyway he is a descendant of the founder of Millersville. There are so many George Millers there that they have to designate them by their looks, like Slim George, tall George, or maybe the color of their hair. Some of them thought Pinkney and Elizabeth had named their son for them, but they didn't. He was named for Elizabeth's father.

Growing up on a farm Pinkney never saw much sense in getting up so early to get the chores done, eating breakfast then sitting around waiting for the sun to come up—but that seemed to be a custom of his father, his grandfather and other farmers.

Pinkney entered Southeast Missouri State College because his family, especially his sister, thought he should. He really wasn't much sold on the idea, but he went anyway.

His first school teaching was at a cotton school where school started in July and lasted about six weeks until the cotton was ripe, then the youngsters were let out of school to pick cotton. The children didn't usually stay in school an entire year and only four of the youngsters remained the year out in his school. One little fellow would read an entire page with no trouble at all, but if one word was pointed out to him he couldn't tell what it was. He was memorizing his lesson by the page.

Miller taught two years in country schools, the other year at Hunter in Carter County which was typical Ozarks. He didn't know that he had been employed because he was a man teacher since all the women teachers had been run off by a bunch of big boys who would go just long enough to get rid of the teacher. If he had known, he wouldn't have taken the school but he didn't know. However, he seemed to get his bluff in right from the start on those boys, some older than he was and bigger, and they quit school. He got them interested in baseball and they became good friends of his.

Pinkney wanted to work with his hands instead of his head. He liked tools and woodwork and took a course in industrial art. It was during the secon year in college that the thought struck him: "Why don't I teach this?" And so he studied with that in mind.

The professor thought he was doing good enough job that when he went away for awhile he turned the teaching duties over to Pinkney. He did the job to such a degree that at the death of the profes.or the president of the college appointed him to take over.

Pinkney continued his studies in industrial education at Missouri University and received his master's degree at the University of Wisconsin at the Stout Institute, which is a big trade school.

It was in 1925 when he came to Sedalia to teach. He had three contracts, but Smith-Cotton looked the best to him, so he came here. He worked right along with the boys he was teaching as an incentive for them to work and thus produced many beautiful pieces of furniture himself.

Out at Washington School Elizabeth was teaching. She was born here and hadn't given much thought to a career when, after graduation from high school, Lydia Montgomery, teacher and principal of Summit School where Elizabeth had gone, and served as assistant teacher, called her in to fill a vacancy. Miss Montgomery urged her to take up teaching and so she did. She went to Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg, the University of California and to the University of Wisconsin.

Pinkney and Elizabeth had met at parties. They seemed to have the same friends, but it wasn't exactly love at first sight. It took quite a little while for the spark to kindle. They both chose to go to the University of Wisconsin at the same time—and that helped, maybe. Anyway, the friendship drifted into romance and the first gift he gave her was a drum-top table he had made.

By this time it wasn't just to give the boys an incentive that Pinkney made furniture — he had a home for Elizabeth. All over their house are pieces that Pinkney made. A beautiful dining room set, a Windsor chair in the living room which was the hardest thing he ever tried to make, a grandfather clock, which he had at school until the cleaning woman eyed it with disgust and commented: "Just somethin' mor to dust," then he brought it home for Elizabeth to dust. But Elizabeth doesn't mind dusting it, she is proud of the clock as she is of everything Pinkney has made, even if some of the things are up in the attic. In Goerge's room is a ladder bed that Pinkney made and an exquisite desk. There is a bed in their room and other bedroom furniture in both bedrooms. He has made all kinds of things, even to a spinning wheel but when Elizabeth didn't seem to take up spinning he put it in the attic, too. The home is filled with beautiful furniture he has made, all solid mahogany.

After Elizabeth married, she quit teaching. There was a rule then, no married teachers. But she was glad, because she liked making a home. Then George joined the family and she was happy she could devote her full time to being a mother.

When the teacher shortage came on, Elizabeth was asked to teach again. She didn't want to. "Talk about being scared your first day teaching," said Elizabeth, "I wasn't half as scared the first time I started teaching as I was the second time." It had been several years since she had taught. If she hadn't been the good citizen that she is, she would have probably refused, but she agreed to try. She feels that Miss Catherine Garman, principal of Whittier School, where she went to teach, was a wonderful help. She gave her just the pointers needed when Elizabeth asked for them.

"I had known Catherine Garman for years," said Elizabeth, "but I really never knew her well until I started to teach under her. She was a grand principal," she said. Pinkney agreed, "She is one of the best principals this town ever had," and added, "She is a brilliant woman."

When Elizabeth began teaching the first time, it was the second grade in the school she started in herself and she was working with the teachers she had had when she was in the first and s cond grade. Now she teaches in Horace Mann—the seventh grade with fifth, sixth and seventh grade reading.

Among the funny things that have happened was when she was teaching the second grade. She had tried to make the lesson impressive and thought she had. Some hands went up and when she gave a small boy permission to speak he did. He stood up and said: "My daddy bought some new underwear."

A few years ago Pinkney got out of the industrial arts department because of his health but in the change received a better job. He is occupational co-ordinator, with the responsibility of co-ordinating boys and girls in high school with business firms, and he likes it. Pinkney is a good man for such a job, everybody knows him, likes him and has confidence in him. The students like him, too. He is also assistant principal. Pinkney is always a good will ambassador for Smith-Cotton, co-operating in any way he can with the civic interests in town.

He is active in the Kiwanis Club, of which he is secretary and also a past president; he serves on the Pettis County Welfare Board, the Community Concert Board, the Pettis County Red Cross Board, and has served in various other ways in community affairs. He and Elizabeth are members of the First Methodist Church. He also is a former president of the Community Teachers Association.

They have two main interests in life. One is, of course, George, who is a geology student at the University of Missouri, and the other is Rusty, a rust-colored cooker spaniel. Rusty is king of the household and they all admit it. They admit, too, that they never thought they would be so silly over a dog—but they are. Rusty, however, seems to be a pretty well-behaved dog and minds well.

The Millers have traveled quite a lot—that is, here in the United States. They attended the National Education Association in Portland, Ore., and went on down the west coast. They have been to the west coast a couple of times, to the east coast, attended Kiwanis International meetings at Chicago, Cleveland and Atlantic City, and also the National School Administrators meeting at Atlantic City; have been to the NEA convention at Detroit; to Yellowstone National Park—bu the nicest trip was to New Orleans.

George has gone in to the service and the Millers were feeling a bit low, as parents always do. It was Christmas time and the telephone rang. It was George, homesick and lonesome.

"Mother," he said, "I can't get a furlough to come home for Christmas, but I can get off to spend Christmas in New Orleans. Won't you and Dad come down here for Christmas with me?"

There wasn't a minute's hesitation. It would be Christmas in New Orleans for the Miller family, and Elizabeth and Pinkney made quick plans and went down. It was beautiful in New Orleans at Christmas time, with flowers blooming everywhere. It seemed like another world.

"It is the nicest Christmas we have ever had," George told them when they started to leave and they felt it was, too.

Elizabeth thinks that teaching is a wonderful profession. "I like to work to make children independent so they can do things for themselves," she said. "Maybe they think I am a little hard on them at times, but I think it should be the aim of all teachers to develop happy, useful and successful citizens." And she added, "There are always some of those children who will tell you in some way that you have really given them something and it always makes you feel good."

Pinkney looked thoughtful when his memory went back over the years. There had been ups and downs in the years of teaching, he said, yet he liked it all. In his own easy manner he has perhaps done most of his teaching by example, making things of wood along with the boys to stimulate an interest to do better work, doing the things day by day in his own life in a natural way to inspire them to be finer citizens. It has been good for the young people of the town and the town itself that one of the Millers from Millersville chose to come to Sedalia.

Graduates of 1926—

Former Members of High School Club Hold Their Third Reunion

The years go by so fast — first they were out of school ten years, then 20 and now their third reunion —30 years—it couldn't be — but it was.

The group of girls in high school called themselves the A. M. O. Club and often they invited in guests and in addition to the round of fun they had in the club during those teenage days most of them belonged to the same Girl Scout Troop. Then they were graduated in 1926 and strangely enough, though they are miles apart they still keep in touch.

The gala affair this year started with a dinner at the Old Missouri Homestead with six of the seven who were planning to be here attending. They were Mrs. William Cassell of Independence, who was Adelyn Holtzen; Miss Julia Knight, Kansas City; Mrs. Hale Bush, Oklahoma City, who was Mildred Hunter; Miss LaRue Johnson, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Bruce Whittier, Chicago, who was Mildred Courtney; and Mrs. LeRoy Rothganger, Sedalia, who was Frances Hayworth. The seventh, Mrs. John S. White, Caruthersville, couldnt make it until Sunday morning.

Friday Adelyn Holtzen Cassell and Mildred Hunter Bush invited them to a luncheon at the Bothwell and Mrs. Charles Yeater entertained them that evening at the Bothwell Lodge.

On Saturday Mrs. Whittier had a luncheon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Courtney, 720 West Sixth with additional guests her sister, Mrs. Keith Jones of Warrensburg, who was Carolyn Courtney, Mrs. Henry Menefee, who was Jane Farrell and Mrs. William Schien, who was Naomi Tanksley, both of Sedalia; and Miss Gertrude Melton of Kansas City.

The large dining room table was centered with an arrangement of garden flowers and there was another smaller table that took care of those who could not get around the big table.

"From the time I got here," said Trudy Melton, "I have done nothing but go to parties and change clothes so I could go to another party."

Saturday night Naomi Schien entertained with a party at the Country Club and after that all went for an after-dinner drink to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stafford, Jr.

Sunday morning Frances Rothganger planned a breakfast at the Bothwell Hotel at 8 a.m. and she invited in a number of people who had been in the Scout Troop with them or had been friends with them one way or another.

The first two guests arrived just about on the dot at 8 a.m., but there wasn't anybody else there. The breakfast table was set in the Palm Room of the hotel with bud vases holding red roses at intervals down the table.

Soon there was another guest and the two looked at each other because they didn't know who was invited, then they called to the woman who had just come in and she went over to them, then another one and another, until a fairly good crowd was there.

The hostess, however, hadn't arrived. She and some of the A. M. O. members had gone to Marshall Junction to pick up Clara White who was supposed to arrive by bus, but the bus didn't come so they left her a note and rushed back to the breakfast.

It was quite a scene when the hostess and three others came in and smilingly joined the group. They went around with hands extended introducing themselves and there was a good deal of laughter and chatter with now and then someone saying in a surprised tone: "Why I never would have recognized you."

That is not exactly the most flattering thing a woman can be told, but, of course, some women are like a young man who told a young woman once after he hadn't seen her for several years: "You are like wine, you improve with age."

The group was seated at the table, all of the six A. M. O. members and in addition, Miss Harriet Gold and Mrs. Carrington Shields, both of whom had been in Girl Scout work when the six were Scouts. Then there were other guests, Miss Margaret Ferguson, Mrs. Francis Diefenbach, who was Jane Laupheimer; Miss Helen Lloyd, Miss Marion Keens, Mrs. Ray Lippard who was Dorothy Suter and Miss Hazel Lang.

The menus were passed around and everyone who wasn't already wearing glasses, and most of them weren't, reached for her purse.

"Everybody get your glasses out," said somebody, and they all laughed.

"It's the telephone directory that bothers me" said one, "I know they are printing telephone directories in much smaller print than they used to."

Then she went on to tell how she had a dinner date one evening and when they were given the menus the man looked at her and said: "I forgot to bring my glasses tonight and I can't read a thing on the menu."

It was a bad situation, she had forgotten her glasses, too, so she squinted at the menu the best she could and finally made out something for them to order.

When it came time for dessert the man said to the waiter: "You read off the dessert to us, we both forgot our glasses."

Just as they were ordering in came Clara Fricke White. She had arrived just in time, took the bus over from the junction.

Clara was smiling and all of them looked at her. There was no doubt that everybody would have known her. "It just isn't fair," exclaimed somebody. "You have no business to stay so young Clara."

"She looks just like she did in high school," commented another.

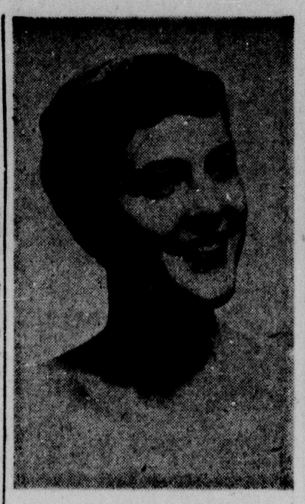
Clara patted the few extra pounds, "I didn't have this in high school," she said laughingly. But the crowd agreed that even where weight came in she had gained very little.

Now that everybody was laughing and talking, one of the special guests whispered to another. "They look natural now, I can see they haven't changed too much — but I didn't seem to recognize hardly anybody when I first got here."

"I think," said the hostess looking over the group, "thirty years has been mighty kind to us all."

About 10 a.m. the breakfast was over because there were more things coming up. There was an early coffee at Trudy's home, 323 West Fifth, and then there was dinner at Flat Creek Inn for the seven and three special guests, Mrs. James A. Southern of Independnece, who was Edith Louise Holtzen, Mrs. Henry Menefee and Miss Trudy Melton.

And that ended the session until ten years from now. "But think what we all might look loke in another ten years" somebody had said at the breakfast. "Ah," commented another, "somebody is always taking the joy out of life" — and so — until 1966.



Nancy Jane Oswald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Oswald, 1300 South Warren, will enter MacMurray College for Women at Jacksonville, Ill., this fall. She is a graduate of Smith-Cotton and received a High School Honor scholarship.

The Sacred Heart and St. Patrick's parochial schools will open Sept. 4.

Changes in the old Sacred Heart building have been made and the new addition is expected to be ready in about a month or six weeks. With the opening of the new section at Sacred Heart a change will be made to the home room system. Each class will have its own room except for specialty courses such as typing and science where equipment is needed.

The parochial schools will observe Thanksgiving, Christmas and other national holidays as well as three holy days.

Enrollment in the Sacred Heart grade school is expected to be about 290 and in the high school about 110.

"LET'S DRIVE FOR SAFETY"

Met While Teaching School--

Elementary School Director, Family Like Sedalia As Home

"We own our home here and believe in the future of Sedalia with its churches, schools, recreational facilities. We believe it is a good place to rear a little girl that will be eight in November". That is what P. A. Sillers thinks of his adopted town and so does his wife, Polly Ann. P.A. is about to take over the duties of supervising all of the Sedalia elementary schools and he has worked his way up to that position by doing a super job wherever he has been assigned. He is not only a good teacher but a good public relations man as well, people like him.

Mrs. Sillers, who is librarian at Smith - Cotton Senior High School, says, "I am proud to be a part of the Sedalia Public Schools and have always been happy that my path was guided to Missouri. Although born a southerner, I have become a mid-westerner from Missouri," says Polly Ann. "Each year we make our annual pilgrimage to Tennessee to visit my family always loaded with all the good selling points of Missouri." Sedalia is fortunate to have teachers like Mr. and Mrs. Sillers, people who look for the good points of the town and tell people, and create in the youngsters a love for the town in which they live.

Polly Ann, who was born on a farm near Clarksville, Tenn., the county seat of Montgomery County, located in middle Tennessee on the Cumberland River, came to Sedalia first. That was in 1940. When she was graduated from the schools in Clarksville she went to the Teacher's College at Murphreesboro, for her freshman year of college and then transferred to the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, where she completed her last three years to receive her bachelor's degree.

It was while she was attending the University of Tennessee that she became interested in the school library. She needed some extra hours for her education certificate and so chose a course in library science. Polly Ann still corresponds with the instructor who inspired her to enter the library field.

Her first year of teaching experience was in the rural consolidated schools of Montgomery County and on Saturdays Polly Ann spent the day at a school circulating library. She was saving money to go to graduating library school at Peabody College, Nashville.

When she was in the second year at Peabody College she received a telegram from one of her professors at the University of Tennessee who asked her to come over the Cumberland Mountains to Knoxville, Tenn., for an interview with Dr. Heber U. Hunt, superintendent of schools of Sedalia, who was teaching in the college of education at the University of Tennessee in 1940. Polly Ann had graded papers for the professor who had sent her the wire for her tuition while she was at the university and he knew she was interested in school libraries. Dr. Hunt was looking for a librarian for Smith-Cotton High School to fill a vacancy created when Miss Laura Margaret Mellette left to go to Redlands, Calif.

Polly Ann had never heard of Sedalia, so she went to the refere e section a tthe library, secured an atlas and checked on all the information she could find on Sedalia. What she found just didn't arouse her interest and so no further contacts were made. But the professor was not about to be stopped on this deal, he wanted Polly Ann to take the school librarian position in Sedalia. He called her long distance and told her Sedalia schools were outstanding and she really should have an interview with Dr. Hunt. So over to Knoxville she went and after she had had the interview with Dr. Hunt he sent her to talk to Miss Helen Harris, a Sedalian, who first organized the library at Smith-Cotton and is now head of the Tennessee Valley and Knoxville Public Libraries. Upon her recommendation and Dr. Hunt's to the Sedalia Board of Education, Polly Ann was hired as librarian to come to Sedalia.

That was a shock to Polly Ann's family. They thought it was an absurd idea to cross the Mississippi to Missouri where she knew no one, and why should she leave a good state like Tennessee? But she explained that she would like to find out about Sedalia and if she didn't like Missouri she could always return to Tennessee, as the library field offered many opportunities.

So in 1940 Polly Ann came to Sedalia. That was 16 years ago.

In September, 1941, she was glad she did. That was when P. A. Sillers came to Smith - Cotton to teach industrial arts and assisted with football.

P. A. was born in Fairfax, Mo., in Atchison County, one of four children, having a brother and two older sisters. He attended rural schools in Atchison County and, after receiving his elementary education, went to high school at Fairfax. He was granted a bachelor's degree in education from Northwest Missouri State College, did one summer's graduate work at the University of Southern California and received his master's degree from the University of Missouri.

He started teaching at Hardin, Mo., in Ray County, and the only thing he can remember about his first day of teaching is that he was scared stiff and totally and completely confused. But he made out all right and stayed at Hardin eight years, where he taught industrial arts, health, physical education and coached football, basketball and track in the high school there. From Hardin he went to Butler, where he taught industrial arts and coached the major sports for one year. Then came 1941 and the opportunity to come to Sedalia.

"I was glad," said Sillers "to come to Sedalia, because I knew the schools of Sedalia were outstanding."

The first year in Sedalia he taught industrial arts and assisted with football in Smith-Cotton. The next year he taught industrial arts only, and the next year, in May, 1943, he was married to Polly Ann. The romance blosomed right in the school, where destiny seemed to have guided them both. They went to Polly Ann's home town, Clarksville, Tenn., to be married and then returned to Sedalia, where they both went on with their teaching.

Five years later their little girl, Anne Weems Sillers, was born. With the coming of the baby, Polly Ann resigned from the Smith-Cotton faculty and intended to stay home and just take care of Anne Weems, but two years later she went back to the school library because of the shortage of teachers.

"My life" says Polly Ann, "centers around school activities and all the absorbing incidents around a growing little eight - year - old girl." She likes to work in her yard, she even likes weeding her flower bed, which she says is about the size of a postage stamp. She finds time to make braided rugs, too, and she thinks it is fun to refinish antiques for their home.

Anne Weems is now in the third grade at Horace Mann and Polly Ann finds her school interests divided between Smith-Cotton activities, those of her husband and now those of her small girl which will grow bigger and bigger every year.

Miss Alyce Ann Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Olson, Hughesville, will major in elementary education at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

Miss Norma Nadine Gunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gunn, Route 5, will enter St. Theresa College of Nursing at St. Joseph's Hospital, Kansas City, this fall for nurse's training.

is a house to keep and cooking to do, but she loves it all.

It was in October, 1947, that P. A. Sillers was transferred to Horace Mann School as principal, and this he liked better than high school. When he started to college he made up his mind he wanted to teach. If he had it to do over again he would choose the same profession but there is one change he would make, now that he has had experience in both.

"If I had it to do over again," he said, "I would start in elementary school work instead of secondary. There is a much closer relationship between parent and teacher in the elementary school."

There have been many experiences in his years of teaching, P. A. said, but perhaps the most surprising thing that ever happened to him was his effort to do something with a second grader who behaved continually like the very bad little boy which he was. The little boy did everything a little boy shouldn't and no punishment seemed to change him. When he had failed in everything else, P. A. told the youngster he was going to paddle him. The child agreed he was bad and he could be a little more cooperative. P. A. placed him across his knee in the proper position for a paddling and gave it to him, then stood him back on his feet. Then came the surprise. The child, tears streaming down his face looked up at P. A. and said: "Thank you, Mr. Sillers."

Since 1949 P. A. has gotten 24 hours credit in the elementary field from the Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, and is well qualified both through education and experience for the new position which has been created in Sedalia, the duties of which he will assume when school opens this fall.

P. A. has many activities, too. He is a member of Rotary Club, the Elementary Principals Association, National Education Association, Community Teachers and the Missouri State Teachers Association. He likes to fish and play golf. A third hobby P. A. says he has is refinishing furniture — but, he adds, under pressure.

Polly Ann, like her husband, says if she had it to do over again she would choose teaching because she likes boys and girls. There is nothing more interesting, she thinks than to watch a child develop. And, too, if she was choosing her career work again it would be school library work, because it offers such a variety of experiences.

"There is never a dull mement working with young Americans," says Polly Ann, and P. A. nods his head in agreement.

She is interested, too, in their church which is the First Methodist, where they attend Sunday School and church and then she belongs to the Missouri Library Association, National Education Association, American Association of University Women and the Misouri State Teachers Association. Polly Ann is kept busy, because, there

New Back to School Shoes for Children Are Higher Styled

A quick look at the shop windows — now brimming over with back-to-school footwear — shows that children's leather shoes are more highly styled, lighter n only in weight but also in line, color and trim, and more grownup than ever.

The young girl chooses from a multitude of styles in leathers in every color in the rainbow. For tailored wear, straps again predominate, with twin straps the most popular. Contrasts of leather in combinations of textures such as calf and suede, buckskin and calif, suede and glove-soft pigskin, as well as contrasting shades of the same leathers, look well with sweaters and skirts.

The popularity of the "easy on-and-off" shoe is growing in leaps and bounds for both boys and girls, focusing new attention on tassel mocs in supple glove leathers and gored pull-ons in creamy tones of elk.

Most of the new flatties for Fall are light as a feather and soft as down. Soft leather slipons are anchored with elasticized throats or sides. High throat lines and high counters give many a truly Oriental look.

Stacked leather heels will be clattering down school corridors, since you'll find them on most of the new flats.

Saddle stitching and leather lacing adds interesting surface treatment to the simple lines of most flats.

For dressy occasions, teen shoes in both suede and smooth leathers come in new intense colors — as a rosy rust; a new dark avocado; scarlet and cherry reds; deep blues and charcoal greys. Most of these have medium heels.

Sling backs and open toes are still popular among teeners, although their older sisters are wearing more closed shoes this Fall.

Miss Beckie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, 1816 West 11th, will enter St. Mary's College, Xavier, Kan., this fall. She plans to major in general education. She is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School, class of 1956.

Blue Jeans Finally Show Loss in Status

Long a traditional part of campus wardrobes—the blue denim jean ensemble — at last is losing its status!

From a shy beginning on Eastern college campuses to a steady push westward — Bermuda shorts now come into importance on the school scene.

In classrooms, 'round the grounds, after - class get-togethers and other school activities, boys and girls alike wear a neat, smart look in knee-length shorts and in calf-length or to-the-knee socks.

Fabrics, colors and combinations may vary in each part of the country — one school may favor khaki, others flannels, solid wools, tweeds or plaids.

The mid-calf or tapered - to - the ankle slack styles seem to be most popular in the Middle West and West coast areas, while schools in the Northwest continue to cast their vote for "those old blue jeans."

Important to remember whatever choice of suitcases is made, is that for a student, luggage is more than a convenience it is a fashion accessory as well and should have good lines, smart color and practical design.

Miss Joann Horst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Horst, 426 North Brown, will enter the Dominican School of Nursing at Great Bend, Kan. She is a graduate from Sacred Heart High School in 1956.

Actor Breaks Sound Barrier In Jet Plane

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—William Holden is carrying around one of the biggest lumps of curiosity in Hollywood.

This has hurtled him through the air, across land and sea and into faraway lands. It is largely responsible for his latest episode: smashing the sound barrier in a jet plane.

If he isn't the first movie personality to break the barrier, he's the first to talk about it.

"Why did I do it? Just curious, I suppose," he says.

The idea came to him after he had completed a picture about the development and testing of the rocket plane, the Bell X2, called "Toward The Unknown."

"I wondered how it would feel so I arranged a flight with the air force," he said.

Holden, a former administrative officer with the air corps in World War II, underwent a flight physical prior to the hop, even "flying" to 40,000 feet in an oxygen chamber.

The actual flight took place in a two-seater TF86 sabre jet over California's Mojave Desert. The air force assigned Brig. Gen. J. Stanley Holtoner, commandant of Edwards Air Force Base, Edwards, Calif., to fly Holden.

"I expected it would be a little more dramatic," he said.

"First we climbed to about 44,000 feet, then dived toward earth, picking up speed. It's real weird up there when you are racing ahead of the sound of the plane. It's so unrealistically quiet.

"I'd seen that English movie on crashing the sound barrier and I was all set for something big. There was only a slight buffeting as we went through the barrier. No big thing."

The actor also was one of the first film stars to fly in a B17 when he appeared in a movie "I Wanted Wings" at the beginning of the war. He also rode in a submarine when he starred in a film about the "Silent Service."

The new Technicolor heart-warming comedy, "That Certain Feeling," starting today at the Fox Theatre, finds funster Bob Hope protraying a role similar to his ingratiating performance in "Seven Litle Foys." Oscar-winning Eva Marie Saint is Hope's co-star, and George Sanders and Songstress Pearl Bailey add to the appealing proceedings.

Chief Crazy Horse, center, playe by Victor Mature, watches intently as representatives of the Sioux nation and the United States Army attempt to bring peace to the Western plains in this scene from the Technicolor production of "Chief Crazy Horse." Susan Ball and John Lund have supporting rolls. The companion feature "Roar of the Crowd" stars Howard Duff in a scorching drama of America's mightiest speed classic. Both features shown tonight and Monday at the 50 Drive-In Theatre.

Child's Vision Is Important To Progress

Among teachers and parents there is growing recognition of the importance of vision as a factor in the progress and well-being of a child.

The limitations of the Snellen Test at 20 feet are now well-known, according to the American Optometric Association, and numerous other tests have been developed to meet the demand for better methods of evaluating the child's visual performance while reading. More use of such screening tests is highly desirable.

To aid teachers in detecting the children who should be referred for complete visual analysis, the Association committee on Visual Problems in Schools has compiled a list of symptoms. The committee recommends:

1. That all children in the lower third of the class, particularly those with ability to achieve above their percentile rating, be referred for complete visual analysis.

2. That every child in the class who, even though achieving, is not working up to within reasonable limits of his own capacity be referred for a complete visual analysis.

Particularly significant manifestations of poor vision, the association committee points out are the following: Losing place while reading, avoiding close work, body rigidity while looking at distant objects, holding reading closer than normal, frowning, excessive blinking, scowling, squinting, or other facial distortions while reading, excessive head movements while reading poor sitting posture while reading, tilting head to one side, tending to rub eyes, thrusting head forward, tension during close work.

Sweaters Take New Style For Fall

In every school-going wardrobe this year — the sweater is a fashion accessory. Where it used to be a part of a kind of college uniform (worn with a small white collar), it's now taken on a real individuality.

Even the classic turtle-neck has gone off in a new direction. Typical is a pullover with a high-rising neckline that's a series of tiers. These are turned back and studded with tiny pearl buttons.

Dressmaker detailing is important this fall. It's shown in delicate collar and neckline treatments. Ribbon chet makes a pretty point of interest as collar trim both back and front.

Money Price Rise, Value Is Slipping

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The price of money is going up at the same time that its value in the market place is slipping.

It will cost a businessman more to borrow money this fall. And when he spends it, chances are he'll get less in materials and services than he could have last spring.

Consumers are finding it costs more to buy many items. At the same time they are finding it hard to locate funds to finance mortgages on the new home they want.

The price of money — what you pay in interest when you borrow — is going up in response to the law of supply and demand. The demand for money, particularly on the part of businessmen wanting to borrow, is growing while the supply of lendable funds is very tight.

Since business is bidding for construction materials and for such capital goods as machinery and tools, and since the supply of many of these items is tight, their price is rising. This approximates the classical definition of inflation: "Too much money (borrowed in this case) chasing too few goods."

In the consumer's case it's quite different. Prices on many manufactured items are going up although there are large stocks of these goods on hand and idle productive capacity. There certainly aren't "too few goods."

The price tags are being marked up at manufacturing level because of higher costs of labor and materials. At the retail level, where competition is fierce, markups aren't nearly as widespread.

Money is tight for several reasons. The great demand for it is one. The demand comes from businesses wishing to expand to prepare for the even greater prosperity they foresee, from merchants carrying costly stocks, and from consumers buying on time.

The supply of it, while growing, isn't keeping up with demand. Basically the supply of money for investment comes from the savings of individuals and corporations. The rate of savings varies as consumers go on spending sprees or tighten up for awhile.

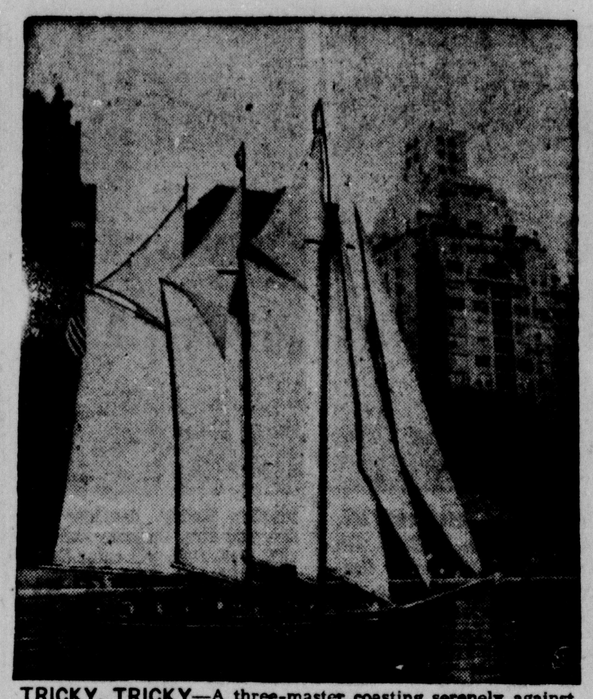
But business notions now of how big an industrial plant the nation will need in the next few years are much bigger than current savings can pay for.

The Federal Reserve Board could ease credit considerably. It could let the banks have more money to lend. By supporting the bond market as it did just after the war it could halt the rise in interest rates.

But the federal reserve policy is to keep money sufficiently tight to head off any upswelling of inflation which it feels would follow the pouring of cheap money into expansion plans and new business ventures. Inflation could bring sharply higher consumer prices.

So borrowing is allowed to grow more difficult and more costly. It is hoped that will help hold down the rising cost of living. So far that weapon hasn't seemed to help the consumer much.

Detroit got its name from early French explorers who founded the city. The name means "The Narrows" in French.



TRICKY, TRICKY—A three-master coasting serenely against a Riviera background? Not quite, for the ship is actually a five-foot model on a Central Park lake, and the apartments are on New York's Fifth avenue.

Leather Accessories Help Add Style At Minimum Cost

The smart gal knows that a few basic costumes and a wardrobe of leather accessories in varied styles and colors makes for plenty of style at a minimum cost.

She can wear the exact same shade of her costume — in shoes of fine, polished smooth calf — bag of a grainy calf — and gloves of a soft suede! Or she may choose from a multitude of other leather textures.

To name but a few, there are: matte leather, which has a smooth unpolished finish; crushed leather, in which the natural grain is emphasized; reversed calf, which is a super-plushy sueded calf; embossed and printed leathers; and aniline-dyed leathers.

Leather bags are slimmer, and clean and simple in outline but with fine detail. Rectangles, elongated square, and squares are popular shapes.

Popular leather colors for fall will include "Shock-hued" reds, blues, and greens as well as sand-to-coffee browns; black and navy, of course!

Miss Mary Jo Bryson, daughter of Mrs. May Bryson and the late Roy L. Bryson, Route 1, will enter nurse's training at Missouri Methodist Hospital, St. Joseph, this fall. (Lehmer photo)
